

Jo Brown

After completing a PhD in Biochemistry, Jo worked for several years in industry, specialising in rapid diagnostics, before moving into teaching in search of new challenges. After a stint in mainstream education, Jo joined CELC in September 2018 and has since assumed the Lead Science role; she is looking forward to building stronger links across the Alliance, and between CELC & HES, to share and develop expertise. Always striving to improve her skill set, Jo looks to use effective communication and collaboration to promote student outcomes and drive progress. She was successfully elected to the CELC Management Committee in January 2021, and is committed to developing the CELC and supporting colleagues, whilst always being solution focused.

Outside of work, Jo is a keen ultra-runner, using races as an excuse to visit beautiful parts of the country.
