To research the planning history of a property, you can use our planning register <https://www.coventry.gov.uk/planningapplications> and/or online map. These resources may provide details of the last known planning use, but please be aware that the current use of a property may have changed without the need for further planning permission.

If you need to confirm the current use class of a property, you will need to apply for a Certificate of Lawful Use (Existing). Details of the application process, including the required documentation, can be found on our website here:

The application must include specific evidence of how the property is being used and for how long.
